

North Coast Cooperative Inc.
Board Policy Manual
Revised April 27, 2023

Introduction

The Board Policy Manual, previously referred to as the Co-op Administrative Code, represents a procedural manual. It is the direct result of Co-op bylaws. The Board Policy Manual is better understood if the Bylaws are viewed as the Co-op's policies, and the procedures contained herein are an implementation of those policies.

The North Coast Cooperative Board Policy Manual is therefore a combination of policy and practice. It is a written set of statements providing guidelines for action in the financial, membership, personnel and planning areas of the Co-op.

Clearly written and available policies and procedures are one of the foundation elements of a system where individuals can be held accountable for adherence to policies and procedures.

Efforts to make policy and procedure information widely accessible, will also provide the tools necessary to effectively maintain decision-making at appropriate levels within the Co-op organization.

The procedural language contained herein, can be likely to change over time as new methods or trends are realized, and new resources or technology becomes available.

This revision of the North Coast Cooperative Board Policy Manual is a compilation of information received from the 2012/2013 and 2008 Administrative Code, the Co-op Management Staff, and the Co-op Board of Directors. It is intended to also reflect the State of California Corporations Code, the North Coast Cooperative Articles of Incorporation, and the North Coast Co-op Bylaws. Additionally, the 2012/13 Administrative Code intends to reflect the spirit of several group discussions, which took place during the past three years of North Coast Co-op Board meetings.

Starting in 2015, the Board approved a new Committee called the Policies and Procedures Committee (PPC) whose job it is to review policies, recommend new policies and maintain the Board Policy Manual. Starting in 2015, all policies will be tracked and sited, and the Manual restructured to be parallel with Bylaws.

For further clarification purposes, below is the ranking for rules and policies followed at the Co-op:

State of California Corporations Code
North Coast Cooperative, Inc. Articles of Incorporation
Bylaws of North Coast Cooperative, Inc.
North Coast Cooperative Board Policy Manual

Overview of Board Policy Manual (previously referred to as Administrative Code):

May 1991 – Board accepted the Administrative Code revision with two minor revisions, entitled North Coast Cooperative Election Policy for a first reading.

March 1993 – Board tabled major revision of the administrative code until January 1994 to encourage management to recommend suggested changes to those codes and policies which for legal or practical reasons should be changed.

November 1994 – Board accepted the Administrative Code as proposed.

November 1998 – Board minutes show that there was an Administrative Code Revision Ad Hoc Committee who met and was redoing the administrative code. Around this same time the Board was sent a sample Policy Governance document.

July 1999 – Board accepted the new Policy Governance with the changes listed below as the interim Board Policies, replacing the previous Administrative Code and policies. A final vote will be held at the November Board meeting.

August 2007 – Board officially moved to abandon (not used) Policy Governance document dated April 8, 2002.

September 2007 – Board discussed state of Administrative code and in May 2008 the Board adopts the Administrative code as presented with corrections.

September 2012 – Board adopted the Administrative Code 2012-2013 as revised. Board minutes from this meeting reflect a discussion to review the Admin Code as part of the monthly board agenda and review it no later than annually but can be reviewed on a monthly basis as needed.

November 2012 – Board minutes show that there was conversation for a need to re-assign Policy Task Force Committee Chair for the “living” Administrative Code document.

2013-2014 – Revised Bylaws research and drafted, which took precedent over updating the Administrative Code. Admin code was intended to be updated once Bylaws were approved. If revised Bylaws had been adopted the title of the Administrative Code would have changed to Board Policy Manual.

March 2015 – Board approved new Committee called the Policies and Procedures Committee, which will handle bylaws, administrative code, securities permit, etc. Secretary will Chair.

B. Membership Benefits and Requirements

Co-op Membership supports reliable access to the best quality of food. A Membership is also a commitment to the local community. The Co-op continuously promotes good health throughout the community by actively and enthusiastically responding to the interests and concerns of its Members and their communities. The Co-op makes substantive contributions to the community through charitable giving, store donations, special events, and educational forums. Members may participate in board committees as outlined in each committee's charter.

Section 2 – Shares

The Co-op is authorized to issue four (4) classes of shares: (Section 2.02b)

Class A – Membership Shares

Class B – Sustaining Shares

Class D – Investment Shares

- No shares may be assigned or transferred. (Section 2.04)
- Only residents of the State of California may purchase Co-op Class A Membership Shares. (Bylaw 1.02)
- The voting rights and privileges of the Co-op rest exclusively in the voters of Class A Membership Shares. (Bylaw 2.02)
- Only bona fide holders of Class A Membership Shares may purchase Class B, C, or D Shares. (Bylaw 2.01)
- No dividends of any kind may be declared on Class A Shares. (Section 2.02a)

A. Repurchasing Shares

The Board of Directors shall determine when the re-purchase of shares may jeopardize the financial status of the Co-op, and therefore authorize a delay of the re-purchase. (Section 2.06)
(Approved – July 2017)

B. Fair Share Definition

A “Fair Share” membership status is attained when a membership owns one (1) Class A Membership Share and at least $300 in Class B Sustaining Shares (bylaw Section 2.08).

(Approved – July 2017)

C. C Share Investment Cap

The Board of Directors hereby sets a $50,000 C Share investment limit per co-op membership. C-Shares currently owned in excess of this amount shall remain, but any redeemed from a membership exceeding the cap shall not be subject to repurchase. Members who currently own C Shares at or above this limit shall not be eligible to purchase additional C Shares. As C Shares come available, half shall be reserved for sale to members who do not currently own any C shares and half to those who are current C share investors on a waiting list maintained by the Membership Coordinator. Current non-C share owners shall have 45 days from the date of availability to purchase available shares.

(Approved – January 2013)

D. C Share Dividend Proration

Move to approve the Finance Committee’s recommendation to prorate C shares dividends to the value at the time based on the purchase date, effective in 3rd quarter with proper notice.

(Approved August 2012 and inserted into BPM January 14, 2016)

Section 3 – Termination of Membership

A. Voluntary, Death, or Dissolution

- Member-owners may terminate their membership, effective immediately, at any time by written notification to the Board Secretary. (Bylaws, Section 3.01)
- Upon the death of a member-owner, the membership, and all membership rights, are immediately terminated. (Bylaws, Section 3.02)
- Upon the dissolution of a member-owner that is a legal entity, the membership, and all membership rights, are immediately terminated. (Bylaws, Section 3.02)

B. Membership Termination Through Expulsion

- 1) A member-owner may be expelled by a two-thirds (2/3) vote of the Board of Directors for any of the reasons specified in Bylaws Section 3.03(a). These reasons include failure to patronize the Co-op in the amount of at least FIFTY dollars ($50.00) during the immediately preceding fiscal year. However, it is the intent of the Board only to expel member-owners who have not spent any money at the Co-op for at least two fiscal years. Other reasons for expulsion include: shoplifting from the Co-op, causing damage to the Co-op, or harassing or threatening its Employees.
- 2) Following the end of each fiscal year, the Board shall ensure that all member-owners who did not patronize the Co-op during the last fiscal year receive notice stating that continued non-patronage may result in expulsion. In addition, the notice will include notice of “no contact,” as provided in Section 3 D (3a) of these policies.

- 3) When a member-owner has failed to patronize the Co-op for two fiscal years and the member-owner has failed to respond in writing to notices required by Section 3 D (3) of these policies, and in the absence of extenuating circumstances, the Board shall expel the member-owner pursuant to Bylaw Section 3.03.
- 4) If the Board of Directors determines that expulsion is appropriate, the expulsion shall become effective on a resolution adopted by two thirds (2/3) vote of the Board of Directors. On expulsion of a member-owner, the name of the member-owner shall be stricken from the membership register and all of his or her membership rights shall cease except for any rights of settlement or redemption as provided in Section 3.04 of the Bylaws.

C. Termination of Memberships

Although the Co-op's Bylaws and policies contemplate a singular membership, it has been the practice of the Co-op to permit household shopping on a single membership. Membership applications from 1990 to the present have included space for collecting information about a second member-owner. California law permits joint memberships. Pursuant to the Co-op's policies, a condition of joint membership is that each joint member-owner designates the other joint member-owner as their Designated Beneficiary in the case of termination (due to death, dissolution or expulsion), and jointly designates one of the joint member-owners to receive any Redemption Proceeds on termination of the membership.

The procedures for termination of memberships are as follows:

- 1) Single membership no second member-owner on application, but spouse is using membership.
 - a. Voluntary: Where a single member-owner gives notice to the Co-op of the intent to withdraw, and there is no second member-owner on the contract, the membership terminates, triggering the member-owner's redemption rights. Because proprietary interests in the Co-op are not transferrable, and there is no contract between the spouse and the Co-op, the member-owner will have the exclusive right to the Redemption Proceeds from the Co-op.
 - b. Death or Dissolution: Where the Co-op receives notice of the death or dissolution of the member-owner, the membership terminates as of the date of death or dissolution, triggering redemption rights. A spouse or heir may demonstrate a legal claim to the Redemption Proceeds, which the Co-op would honor. The spouse or heir may open a new, single-person membership. In the case of dissolution, the original member-owner will retain the original membership number. In the case of death, the surviving spouse's new membership may be designated by the same membership number.
 - c. Expulsion: Where a single member-owner is expelled from the Co-op, the redemption rights will be triggered as indicated above. However, if the expulsion is due to no contact, the Co-op will not be able to redeem the shares (there is no means of locating the member-owner). In this case, the Co-op will hold the proprietary interests until they are properly claimed or until they become subject to transfer to the Co-op after the third year of no contact (Policies, Section 3 D (4)). A spouse or heir would need to demonstrate a legal claim to have rights in the Redemption Proceeds following expulsion for no contact, and such claim would only be honored prior to the transfer to the Co-op.

Following transfer to the Co-op, a member-owner has no further claim to the proprietary interests or to any redemption proceeds.

- 2) Joint membership, with second member-owner on application. Where there are two member-owners on the application, each will have designated the other joint member-owner as their beneficiary; however, either joint member may voluntarily terminate the membership and receive all redemption proceeds.
 - a. Voluntary: Where one or both joint member-owners wish to voluntarily terminate the membership, the Co-op will redeem the proprietary interests to the joint member-owner who initiates the request. If one joint member-owner wishes to remain a member-owner of the Co-op, the Co-op will terminate the joint membership and open a new, single-person membership for the remaining member-owner, and the new membership may be designated by the same membership number.
 - b. Death or Dissolution: In the case of Death or Dissolution, the membership will terminate, and the surviving designated beneficiary will have rights to the Redemption Proceeds. The surviving joint member-owner may open a new membership, and the new membership may be designated by the same membership number.
 - c. Expulsion: Where a joint member-owner is expelled, the Co-op will terminate the membership, triggering redemption rights. The Redemption Proceeds will be paid to the remaining joint member-owner. The remaining joint member-owner may open a new membership, and the new membership may be designated by the same membership number.
- 3) Trusts: A member-owner's proprietary interest in the Co-op cannot be placed in a trust because the propriety interests are not transferrable. This means that a beneficiary of a trust could not receive the proprietary interests. A beneficiary of the trust may receive the Redemption Proceeds equal to the value of the proprietary interest. The Co-op recognizes that member-owners may wish to ensure that their heirs receive the value of the proprietary interest through distribution of the Redemption Proceeds to a trust. To accommodate these member-owners, the cooperative permits the member-owners to designate the Trustee of their trust as the beneficiary of the Redemption Proceeds in the event of membership termination. The membership may be either a single or joint membership. In the case of a joint membership, the Trustee will be designated as a secondary beneficiary following the surviving joint member-owner.
 - a. Termination of Single Membership with Trustee named as beneficiary:
On termination, the member-owner's Redemption rights are triggered, and the Co-op will pay the Redemption Proceeds to the Trustee of the member-owner's trust. The member-owner can list the right to receive the Redemption Proceeds as an asset in their trust, putting the trustee on notice to collect that asset after the death of the member-settlor of the trust.
 - b. Termination of Joint Membership with Trustee named as beneficiary:
On termination of the joint membership, the remaining joint member-owner is named as the primary beneficiary and will receive the Redemption Proceeds. If neither joint member-owner is able to receive the Redemption Proceeds—for example in the case of simultaneous death—the trustee, as beneficiary, will be able to receive the Redemption Proceeds. If there is a remaining joint member-owner, the membership will still be terminated, and proceeds redeemed; however, if the remaining member-owner wishes to open a new account, the new account will be a single membership and the Trustee can be named as beneficiary. The new membership may be designated by the same membership number.

c. Trustee Situs:

Trustee does not need to be a resident of the state of California as the trustee will not become a member-owner of the Co-op but will only be entitled to receive the Redemption Proceeds.

D. Maintenance of Membership Rolls Policy

- 1) It is the intent of the Board to maintain an active role of memberships in order to minimize administrative burden and negative impact to the environment. Membership rolls are maintained either through patronage as described in Section 3 B (1) of these policies, or through “no-contact.” “No Contact” means no response from the member-owner to the cooperative’s written communication requests to the member-owner, and/or return of mail to the Co-op as undeliverable. In evaluating whether there has been “Contact” the Co-op will not consider shopping or voting, which could be done by someone other than the member-owner, using the member-owner’s number. “Contact” includes receipt of a cancelled check or redeemed voucher negotiating the member-owner’s patronage refund or share dividends but does not include mail returned to the cooperative as undeliverable.
- 2) In the case of death or dissolution, the cooperative has not received notice of the death or dissolution and is not able to declare the membership terminated. Where there has been no contact with the cooperative through written communication from the member-owner, or negotiation of distributions of patronage refunds and/or share dividends, the membership is in jeopardy of becoming terminated.
- 3) Following the end of each fiscal year, the Board shall ensure that all member-owners who did not contact the Co-op during the last fiscal year receive notice mailed to the last known address stating the membership is in jeopardy of being terminated.
 - a. The notice shall explain the legal status of the member-owner’s proprietary interest after one, two and three years of no contact and it will direct the member-owner as to how to affirm his or her proprietary rights and request that the member-owner contact the Co-op.

When a member-owner has failed to contact the Co-op for two fiscal years and the member-owner has failed to respond in writing to notices required by Section 3 D (3) of these policies, the Co-op will send an additional notice and request for contact. The notice shall explain the legal status of the member-owner’s proprietary interest after one, two and three years of no contact and it will direct the member-owner as to how to affirm his or her proprietary rights.

When a member-owner has failed to contact the Co-op for three fiscal years and the member-owner has failed to respond in writing to notices required by Section 3D (3) of these policies, the Co-op will send an additional notice and request for contact. The notice shall provide that after the third year, the property will be transferred to the Co-op in accordance with California Cooperative Law section 12446 and Bylaws section 2.07.

- 4) If the Board of Directors determines that expulsion is appropriate, the expulsion shall become effective on a resolution adopted by two thirds (2/3) vote of the Board of Directors. On expulsion of a member-owner, the name of the member-owner shall be stricken from the membership register and all of his or her membership rights shall cease except for any rights of settlement or redemption as provided in Section 3.04 of the Bylaws.4)
- 5) Redemption Proceeds, as used in these Policies, refers to any amounts due to a member-owner, or a legal or designated beneficiary of a member-owner, on the termination of a membership, exclusive of any amounts due from the member-owner to the cooperative. For purposes of redemption, in the case of termination by death or dissolution, the value of a membership account shall be as of the date of death or dissolution, rather than the date of termination of the membership.

E. Cooperative Exemption from California's Escheat Laws:

- 1) Certain unclaimed personal property, including a member-owner's proprietary interests in a cooperative, and accrued but unpaid patronage and any dividends, will escheat to the state of California pursuant to California's Code of Civil Procedure section 1516. The property will escheat if the following applies: first, there has been no contact between the member-owner and the cooperative for 3 years, and second, the cooperative does not know the location of the member-owner.
- 2) California's Cooperative Law section 12446 provides an exception to the escheat rule and provides that property that would otherwise escheat will instead become property of the cooperative if the cooperative has a requisite provision in its Bylaws, and it follows a specified procedure.
- 3) Unclaimed Proprietary Interest Procedure:
 - a. The General Manager shall report annually to the Board on the number of member-owners who received notices pursuant to Section 3 D(3) of these policies. The General Manager's report shall list all memberships terminated because of voluntary termination, or termination by death or dissolution, and shall state the disposition of the proprietary interests associated with the membership.
 - b. The report shall list all memberships terminated because of expulsion, including expulsion for lack of contact, and the report shall indicate the form of notice given to alert the member-owner of the risk the membership will become terminated.
 - c. The report shall list all memberships for which there has been no contact and shall state the value of the unclaimed proprietary interests, broken down by the number of years of no contact.
 - d. After three fiscal years of no contact, and following notice and procedure, as prescribed in these policies and California law, unclaimed proprietary interests shall be transferred to the Co-op pursuant to the California Corporations Code section 12446, and Bylaws Section 2.07.
 - e. This policy shall be interpreted in such a way as to ensure compliance with all applicable statutes and the most recent version of the State of California Unclaimed Property

Holder Handbook. The Board shall review and update this policy as needed to ensure compliance. (Entirety of Section 3 Approved – February 2018)

H. Guidelines for Board Members Communicating with Staff

All individual board members are bound by a decision of the majority of the board even if they disagree. When speaking about a board decision a board director has the responsibility to provide an unbiased and factual account of the board's action/s. Board members who dissent in public about a particular board decision or organizational direction should qualify such dissent by stating that it is their own viewpoint and, if true, that the board decision was made following proper procedures.

Board and staff communication can be tricky due to the power dynamics between board and staff. During times of trust between board and staff, good judgment and the assumption of good intent on the part of others are the only formal guidance needed. During times of distrust, communication pathways can become constricted and questions, directive and feedback, can be perceived as subversive or even as an attack. It is important that board and staff maintain healthy communication in order to build trust and contribute to a thriving Co-op.

During the course of business, it will become necessary for board members to communicate with staff and vice versa. Whether the communication is a question, a directive, or simply feedback, consider the following:

1. The appropriate person to give a directive is the employee's supervisor
2. Directives and inquiries can take more time than anticipated
3. Feedback can be misinterpreted, especially when in electronic form
4. Some directives/inquiries may not be a good use of staff time
5. Some directives/inquiries may be best suited to other board members, the board as a whole, or board committees
6. Directives/inquiries that will take significant staff time should go to the board, as a whole, to determine, along with the general manager, if the dedication of resources fits within the current priorities
7. Directives/inquiries should have specific goals and clearly stated desired outcomes, understood forms of reporting back, as well as deadlines.

Taking the above into consideration, communication should not be restricted to only the general manager. In order to ensure an efficient and effective process, the following guidelines should be used:

1. Share information that enables effective ambassadorship and democratic representation. It should be totally fine, and indeed encouraged, for any staff member to give any board member information about a program or other organizational element that would allow the board member to be a more effective representative for the organization and its mission.
2. Keep general manager in the loop, but no bottlenecks. It's silly to bottleneck the flow of information by requiring all interactions to be monitored and/or controlled by the general manager. Sure, informing the general manager of meetings that are taking place makes good sense most of the time, but in healthy organizations where there is trust and goodwill, prior permission shouldn't be needed. If you find yourself wanting to restrict communications or require prior permission, address the source of mistrust, don't create new rules about who gets to talk to whom.
3. Maintain healthy boundaries. If ever a direct interaction between a board member and a staff member seems headed in the direction of concerns about a program or strategy or decision, then both parties, but especially the board member should consider the most appropriate venue for addressing that concern.
4. Be respectful of staff time. Every inquiry and directive require staff time that may or may not hinder other deadlines from being met. Schedule a time to talk with staff, so they can give their full attention and meet their other obligations.

I. Complaints About the General Manager

From time to time, the board may receive complaints about the General Manager from employees or other parties. If the Board receives a complaint which it judges to be credible and actionable, the Board should generally consult with the Co-op's Human Resources Director or other relevant professional(s) to determine an appropriate course of action. The Board may direct internal or external investigations of the General Manager or the General Manager's actions if it deems necessary and may take action based on the results of such investigations.
